

"DOJ lawsuit could dampen future role of in-house counsel," New England In House

February 2, 2011
New England In House
Denis King

The U.S. Department of Justice raises questions about whether lawyers working for companies are now firmly in the government's enforcement crosshairs and if the future role of in-house counsel will be diminished as a result.