Kiman Kaur is a litigator in the firm's Boston office. Kiman resolves a wide range of business disputes across all stages of litigation. Her practice includes state and federal cases at the trial and appellate levels involving employment law, real estate, professional liability, and complex commercial disputes. She also maintains an active pro bono practice concentrating on issues involving racial and reproductive justice.

Prior to joining the firm, Kiman served as a judicial law clerk within the U.S. District Court in the District of Utah for the Honorable Ted Stewart where she drafted court orders and assisted the Judge in courtroom proceedings. Her legal experience also includes a judicial internship with the Honorable Victoria Roberts in the U.S. District Court for the Eastern District of Michigan during law school.

While attending Northeastern University School of Law, Kiman provided legal assistance to victims of sexual violence through Northeastern's Domestic Violence Law Clinic and served as a student attorney for Northeastern's Civil Rights and Restorative Justice Clinic. She was also a legal intern for the National Asian Pacific American Women's Forum, researching and addressing reproductive health disparities for Asian American and Pacific Islander women and girls.
