Matthew Tosto is a real estate lawyer who handles complex real estate investments and transactions. He counsels both individual and institutional real estate investors, as well as developers and financial institutions, in matters throughout the United States. Matthew advises clients on intricate transactions including acquisitions and dispositions (including portfolio transactions), joint venture arrangements, and development projects. He also represents both borrowers and lenders in real estate financing transactions, including acquisition financing, construction and permanent loans, loan participations, syndications, and mezzanine loans.

Prior to joining Goulston & Storrs, Matthew was a real estate associate at Am Law 50 firms in New York City and Boston. Before law school, Matthew developed a strong business foundation while working as an investment analyst at an international asset management firm.
