Michael Nzoiwu is an attorney in the firm's litigation group where he assists in resolving general litigation matters for clients across a range of industries.

Prior to joining Goulston & Storrs as an associate, Michael was a judicial intern at the Massachusetts Appeals Court in Boston. In this role, he handled appeals court matters including Americans with Disabilities Act, housing and foreclosures and procedural policy amendments. He also conducted legal research to supplement committee considerations of novel legal issues on family, housing and criminal matters. Michael's experience includes working as a congressional intern conducting legislative research on bills and House resolutions while contributing to the inner workings of legislative advocacy.
