

Professional Liability

The Goulston & Storrs Professional Liability Group is without question the “go-to” group for elite law firms in Boston and New York that have chosen us to be their advocates. The Group includes two Fellows of the American College of Trial Lawyers (ACTL), two members of the Massachusetts Bar Association Ethics Committee, a member of the New York City Bar Association Professional Responsibility Committee, a member of the Boston Bar Association Ethics Committee, a member of the American Bar Association’s Committee on Ethics and Professional Responsibility, and a former member of the Massachusetts Board of Bar Overseers.

Our professional liability lawyers have also lectured at seminars on professional liability sponsored by the ACTL, the ABA Standing Committee on Lawyers Professional Liability, the Boston Bar Association, the Ethics Officers Association and the American Corporate Counsel Association.

We are nationally recognized as top-rated practitioners by our peers, as demonstrated by the fact that numerous AmLaw 100 and AmLaw 200 firms, and general counsel at law firms of all sizes have hired us when confronted with thorny legal and professional problems of their own. We also handle cases referred to us by other firms who want the very best representation for their clients in litigation. With a strong record of success as both trial and appellate lawyers, we have the ability to plan and execute a winning strategy from the outset of a case.

In recent years, interviewees of Chambers USA have described our litigators as “a strong group with extensive trial skills” which is “dedicated to client service,” and one which has a “deep bench in its Boston office.”

Clients especially love that our trial advocates are also keenly aware of the business context in which litigation decisions must be made, making special efforts to understand how a verdict or settlement affects the client’s brand and business.

Our Service Difference

We place a cultural emphasis on individualized attention to every case, focusing on responsiveness, lean staffing, efficiency and results. We often litigate successfully with fewer lawyers than our opponents, while remaining more accessible to our clients when needed. We also carefully choose attorneys who are the right fit for each case, with the goal of providing each client with a stable support team through the course of our representation.

Because of our deep experience, we provide value to clients through early case assessments, which help to identify potential opportunities for quick and creative resolutions. While we look for creative out-of-court solutions whenever possible, we are well prepared to try cases when necessary, and have done so with success. If you check our references, you will find we have a reputation for conducting ourselves as formidable but reasonable adversaries with the utmost professionalism.

We also understand and appreciate that our clients are entrusting their professional lives to us when they rely on us as trial advocates, and we take that trust seriously. In fact, the entire structure of our firm is client-centric, providing incentives for us to work collaboratively and share information and ideas in order to support our clients to the fullest.

Our Clients

We have significant experience representing law firms and other professional service firms, architects, physicians, corporate general counsel and law departments, corporate officers and directors, corporate special committees, and individual professionals and administrators within professional organizations. We also represent educational administrators in a variety of claims.

Through our work with Attorneys Liability Assurance Society, we have represented lawyers from around the country who have been sued in Massachusetts and other New England states.

Our Professional Liability Group has represented many AmLaw 100 and 200 law firms, as well as two multinational law firms who sought our counsel in opening their Boston offices. In addition, numerous general counsel for law firms of all sizes have sought our advice regarding ethics and professional liability matters.

Our Experience

Our Professional Liability group defends professionals and their firms in malpractice actions, we represent officers and directors facing professional liability exposures, and we defend third party beneficiary claims by corporate constituents for breach of fiduciary duty. We also represent professionals in disciplinary actions, and provide counsel regarding ethics, professionalism and best practices. Our lawyers have appeared in many forums, including state and federal courts, the Board of Bar Overseers and the Board of Registration of Medicine.

Our attorneys provide advice and assistance in developing effective internal compliance programs in order to avoid claims and disputes and lay the groundwork for successful legal defense. We also represent law firms and lawyers in connection with mergers and acquisitions, disputes with departing partners and other internal matters.
