

A Baseball Lockout Has Begun

December 4, 2021

Bloomberg - Business of Sports Podcast

---

For the first time in 26 years, Major League Baseball entered a work stoppage this week. MLB locked out its players Thursday morning, setting the stage for a tough round of negotiations with the players union. Michael Barr and Mike Lynch sit down with MLB network insider Jon Morosi and Goulston & Storrs Sports Law Chair Martin Edel to learn what issues divide the two sides and if we'll see baseball in 2022.
